

Abstract Of The Disclosure

The method described is used for recording operating data of a technical device. According to the method, a command sequence is initially generated, which is transmitted to a monitoring unit in the technical device. The command sequence is processed in a processing unit in the monitoring unit. In addition, a device for recording operating data and a computer program for implementing the method according to the present invention are provided.

5